

The New York Times

September 4, 2012

Chefs Try New Terrain, Like the Upper East Side

DELMONICO'S KITCHEN Delmonico's has been in business on the corner of Beaver and William Streets in the financial district for 175 years. Earlier in its history, the founder, Lorenzo Delmonico, opened some spinoffs farther uptown. These are long gone, but the current managing partner, Dennis Turcinovic, and the chef, Billy Oliva, will open a branch in the garment district, with updated versions of some Delmonico signatures, including Delmonico steak, lobster Newburg, Delmonico potatoes, eggs Benedict and baked alaska. (Oct. 25): 207 West 36th Street.